Post Office Will Sell Medallion Mementos

The Didsbury Post Office and Mr. Verne Gillrie, local letter carrier, will soon be selling official commemorative medallions, in Canadian mined silver and in bronze made from Canadian copper, as mementos of the royal visit of the King and Queen.

To further emphasize the occasion, Prime Minister Mackenzie-King has approved distribution of 2,500,000 smaller medallions to the school children of Canada.

All the medallions bear the likenesses of their Majesties, and on the reverse side a special commemorative design displaying a map of the Dominion, surmounted by a shield containing Canada's arms and ensigned by the Imperial Crown.

The inscription surrounding the map is: "From Sea to Sea Canada Salutes Her King and Queen." The honor of designing the medallions went to a Canadian artist and sculptor of distinction, Emanuel Hahn, R.C.A., S.S.C., of Toronto.

The silver medallions will sell at 50 cents each, and those of bronze at 10 cents each. The former are slightly larger than a 50 cent piece. Each coin is handled individually and packed in a separate container to prevent scratching.

Fires Banned.

With a fire hazard claimed to be greater at this time of year than hitherto and with several bush and grass fires still burning in the north, the forestry branch of the department of lands and mines at Edmonton, has cancelled until further notice all permits to burn brush, grass or anything else.

J. P. Alexander, superintendent of the Bow River and Crow's Nest forest reserve stated that the ruling would undoubtedly apply to all that section of wooded country lying west of the railway line from Edmonton to Calgary and in that general direction to the border. Ordinarily in the southern section of the province permits to burn brush are not required by settlers ranchers prior to May 1, and most of such burning has been completed in this area, said Mr. Alexander.

Auxiliaries To Safety

Provided the cost of installation is not too great to render prohibitive the use of them in sufficient number to be of real value, the newly announced mirrors enabling motorists climbing up an incline to see the cars coming up on the other side before the crest is reached, should be effective as a life and limb saver on the highways.

The result of six years' experimentation, the new device consists of a glass 12 feet wide and four feet high which is mounted on a bridge straddling the crest of the hill similar to those used to carry railway signals.

It is made of 17 triangular bars of glass laid parallel across the face, according to a report presented to the Greater New York Safety Council. Each bar is a prism which bends the light rays coming up one side of the hill to go downward on the other side and reflects everything about half size. Moreover, it is said to be effective at night.

To what extent the general use of such a device on the highways would prevent accidents occurring on hills is difficult to say until it has been put to practical use for a period of time. Suffice it to say, however, that lack of vision over hilltops has been responsible for many serious accidents in the past, resulting in many deaths and severe injuries, to say nothing of property loss represented by wrecked automobiles and trucks.

Such accidents are sometimes caused by a driver persisting in driving up a hill at high speed on the wrong side of the road, or of one driver passing another near the top of a hill while a third car travelling in the opposite direction is coming up on the other side, leaving insufficient space for the three cars to pass one another abreast.

Worth A Trial

On the face of it, the invention appears to have sufficient merit to make a demonstration of its use worth while and any money which the governments might spend in installing one or two on the principal highways in each of the provinces would probably be money well expended. If two or three trial mirrors of this type proved their worth, it would not be long before the general motoring public would demand installation of them on all of the dangerous hills and doubtless would be prepared to defray the cost of such a convenience.

The steep hill on the highway is, of course, only one of the hazards of motor travel, but it is one of the most prolific sources of danger and as a death trap ranks with the unprotected level crossing. "Never pass another car on a hill" is one of the slogans of safety first organizations but, unfortunately, it is a piece of advice that too often is honored in the breach.

With the summer months approaching and the season of maximum use of the highways commencing, the present is an opportune time to take stock of the dangers of the open road and to reflect upon the measures that can and should be taken, if not to eliminate entirely, to minimize at least the tremendous annual toll of life, limb and property exacted by accidents on the road.

This is largely an individual problem since statistics, as far as the necessary information is available, demonstrate that the human element is responsible for by far the greater percentage of the risks and the losses. In other words, a very substantial proportion of accidents is due to criminal negligence, of recklessness, or plain carelessness and lack of proper precaution rather than mechanical defects.

Make An Inventory

With the human element, the vicarious or eccentricities, misjudgments or the mere aberrations of the driver, responsible for the great majority of accidents on the highway, it is essential that every motorist take time off occasionally to conduct a self-examination of his own habits and mental reflexes at the wheel.

It is a good precautionary measure for a driver to list potential causes of accidents and ask himself what he would do were he suddenly faced with situations likely to cause disaster to the unprepared. It is good practice for the motorist to make a similar list of his own bad or dangerous habits on the highway and drill himself into decisions to avoid them.

"I did not see it" is one of the most frequent excuses heard at the post mortem of highway accidents, betokening lack of powers of observation or failure to exercise them.

Every driver of an automobile or truck should cultivate the practice of watching for the little things which may signal danger ahead. The sudden, unobscured sight of a bird sitting on the road opposite an intersection 75 or 100 yards ahead is likely to be a warning that another vehicle is approaching at right angles.

The keenly observant driver eventually develops an intuition of pending danger. A car, some day may stand him in good stead and save his life and the lives of others. The careless, non-observant driver is ever a menace to himself and to others.

Mechanical devices, such as those referred to at the outset have their value but their value is much enhanced if the driver does not permit them to mask his ignorance or to let up in the practice of sensible conduct.

Florida Residents See Snow

Shipment Taken To St. Petersburg Was Shown In Store Window

That white fluff parents told wistful youngsters staring in a downtown store window in St. Petersburg, Florida, was snow—the stuff you see pictured on Christmas cards. And that's about the only place many natives of this sunshine resort had seen it before an air express shipment arrived from Cannon Mountain, New Hampshire, and was placed on public display. The snow, packed in cartons protected by dry ice, was brought by the New Hampshire Tourist Society for use at a party.

Mansion For Sale Cheap

But Initial Cost Of Five Dollars Is Just The Start

Would you like to buy a London mansion right in the West End near to Hyde Park, with ten bedrooms, three bathrooms, and five reception rooms, in one of London's fashionable squares, for £17? You would? Well, the agents for No. 29, Hyde Park-square will be pleased if you will call and sign the contract.

And then well, you don't wake up, but you find there is a snag about it—several snags in fact. The ground rent works out at about £280 a year, the rates (at present) at £154, and the lease is a full-repairing one which means that it will cost about £100 to paint the front of the house alone! So, if you are not prepared to spend some £700 or £800 a year on your prospective home, you'll have to look elsewhere. Perhaps, after all, you'll take that thirty bob a week flat—constant hot water, and if the plaster off the ceiling hits you when it falls, you're unlucky.

Still a notice outside No. 29, which is empty at present, says that 36 years' unrequired lease is for sale at the cost of £1. Until Christmas No. 29 was the town house of Frederick R. H. Millar, assistant private secretary to the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, and now First Secretary at the British Embassy in Washington. Overseas Daily Mail.

Air Borne Traffic

Remarkable Increase In Passenger And Mail Revenue Is Shown

In spite of the cycle of recession, statistics show a remarkable increase in air line passenger traffic and mail revenue in the past few years. George G. Wakeman, general traffic manager of the Trans-Canada Airlines, said in an address to Westmount Rotary Club. Last year, he pointed out, 1,500,000 passengers were carried in the United States, an increase of 200 per cent. in five years. World figures for 1938 were not available but the total he said, was in excess of 1937, when there were 5,978,199 air travellers.

A study of traffic figures for air line operations in Canada showed that air mail poundage increased from 625,040 pounds in 1934 to 1,857,221 in 1938, about 75 per cent. in four years. Air mail postage revenue last year was estimated at $505,592.96. In the same period air freight and express in Canada increased from 14,441,179 pounds to 26,387,719, nearly 50 per cent.

Three thousand disabled soldiers of the Great War still are being treated in British hospitals. Great Britain supplies about 4,000 artificial limbs to war pensioners in a single year.

New Type Cafe

Makes Specialty Of Milk, Cheese Sandwiches And Buttered Toast

Many Milwaukeeans, says Country Home, now give parties out in the country at the "Milk Jug", where cold, creamy milk is on tap, and tasty cheese sandwiches and thickly buttered toast can be ordered to go with it. Cows are milked in a sanitary parlor right before their eyes, and cheese and butter are made while they wait. Now nearing the end of its second year, this picturesque wayside inn is going strong, and sales run as high as $300 a day.

When a large area of Essex, England, was flooded by sea water 40 years ago, it killed off all the earthworms and they did not reappear until two years later.

Gardening Notes.

We have seen many gardens where there are quantities of vegetables grown little relished by the various members of the family.
There are, of course, the staple things such as beets, peas, carrots, radishes, celery, cabbage, cauliflower, etc. Then there are possibilities along the lines of squash, citrons, pumpkin, cucumbers and even watermelons or cantelopes.
There are many other things that might be considered for a garden, but it is well in making out the list for seeds to consider carefully the things that the family enjoy most.
Then, one must not only prepare for the summer use, but must also consider what may be needed in the way of canned fruits and vegetables, and also sufficient for winter storage.

Westcott Notes.

Our sympathy is extended to Rev.
J. Kuring, who was called to Chicago on account of the death of his mother.

We are pleased to know that the sick folks are improving slowly.
Mr. Emmor Tuggle, who has been confined to his bed for so long; Miss Jean Fletcher, who has been laid up since Christmas with rheumatism; and also Grandma Levagood, who is able to be up again.

On Tuesday afternoon, April 18th, the ladies of the district held a miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Wm.
Stubbs at her home. She had the misfortune to recently lose her home by fire. Mrs. Stubbs received many useful gifts, among them a cedar chest of silverware, a gift from the Westcott Literary Society.

The bazaar held at the Westcott School on Friday evening to raise funds for the purpose of sending the children to Calgary to see Their Majesties, was highly successful.
Mr. "Swede" Befus very efficiently sold all the articles, and the children should have a pleasant trip. Mr.
Perrin and his pupils are to be congratulated on the things they had made in the "shop" and through the selling of which made the trip possible.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE Director "Crop Testing Plan"

"If we, (the Railways) are to have profit, then the farmers must sell wheat and buy other goods as well
... unless the price of what the farmer produces is going to rise very rapidly, the rest of us will have to set our minds very seriously to reducing the price of what he buys."

This was the comment made recently at a public meeting at Montreal by Sir Edward Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railways. Sir Edward's conclusions will meet with the hearty approval of the farmers of Western Canada.
for, as the Searle Index has been showing every month for years past, the high cost of the things our farmers must buy for living and production has become an unsupportable burden.

The easiest way, I believe, to reduce the cost of the things farmers have to buy is by lowering Canadian tariffs.

Present high tariffs raise the cost of production, and so make it difficult for our farmers to compete on world's markets with other wheat exporting countries. Tariffs seriously curtail foreign markets for wheat, and so build up surpluses which in turn lower price.

And now events show that high tariffs are the prime cause of the present probability of war.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Russian winter grains in none too favourable condition -- Several Argentine wheat cargoes diverted to Spain -- British Government formulates scheme whereby bakers increase flour reserves -- Opening of Great Lakes navigation delayed -- Conditions less favourable in the U.S. winter wheat belt -- Flour shortage in Manchuria.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Subsoil moisture abundant and conditions favour seeding in Argentina -- Excellent Italian wheat crop prospects -- U.S.
wheat stock largest for many years
at this time -- Argentine Grain Board continues to press wheat offers on European markets -- South African corn estimates larger than last season.

IF there were no life insurance, millions of Canadian citizens would dread the future. Many men would be powerless to protect their loved ones. Thousands more families would be "on relief".

Fortunately there IS life insurance—and Canadian families can face the future unafraid. Through their savings in life insurance, men and women (1) guarantee financial security for their families; (2) provide funds for educating their children; (3) protect their own old age.

Each and every working day, policyholders and their beneficiaries in Canada receive more than Five Hundred Thousand Dollars from their life insurance savings.

Family Owns Cocos Island

Was Settled By Scotsman Named Ross A Century Ago

Head of a new committee just established in London to publicize Empire wool is young tall, good-looking Dr. I. Clunies Ross. He represents Australia on this committee which also has members from South Africa and New Zealand. His family, however, is linked not so much with Australia as with Cocos Island, where a Scottish ancestor settled more than a century ago. The island has been owned by the Ross family ever since, says the London Daily Sketch. Cocos Island is the most important of a small group of tiny coral islets in the Indian Ocean. As the name suggests, it is noted for coconuts, not sheep. In fact, pigs and rats are the only mammals on the island with the exception, of course, of the human inhabitants, mostly Malays, Chinese and Indians, with a sprinkling of Europeans. Incidentally, this is not the same Cocos Island, where all the treasure-hunting took place a few years ago.

Preserving Lenin's Body

Process Used For Embalming Has Become A State Secret

Professor Boris Ilyich Zharsky and two assistants were awarded decorations for their achievements in connection with the successful embalming of Nikolai Lenin's body.

Lenin founder of the Soviet Union, died Jan. 21, 1921, and the crowds of mourners who came to see him lying in state gave Bolshevik leaders the idea of a semi-permanent display. The late Dr. Vladimir Vorobiev and Prof. Zharsky were called in.

"Give us a free hand and follow our instructions afterward," they said, "and we guarantee to preserve the appearance of the visible parts of the body unimpaired not only for the three months you ask, but perhaps for 100 years."

The process they used has become a state secret.

Must Keep On Pedaling

A dictator is up against the same proposition as a man on a bicycle. "He can't stop pedaling," said Jan Masaryk, former Czechoslovakian Minister to London and son of the defunct democracy's founder, who arrived at New York from Chicago. "He's got to keep on pedaling or he'll fall off."

Future Of Aviation

From Vancouver To London In 48 Hours Is Predicted

Aviation and wireless are the two inventions of our times that have been the great revolutionary improvements in human communication; they have brought the people of the world very close to one another and at once to their advantage and their peril.

Mr. McTaggart Cowan points the moral and adorns the tale of one of these inventions. He says that air passage from Vancouver to London, in 48 hours, will most likely be possible by 1941.

It is an extraordinary prophecy, but the statement of it, of course, is not startling at all. Mr. Cowan suggests, almost as a matter of course, that there will be another year of experimental flight and preparation, then a preliminary trans-Atlantic air-mail service, and then mail and passenger service together.

The progress of the newly-inaugurated trans-Canada air service is the promise and the pattern of the extended service. The sort of work Mr. Cowan is carrying on at Botwood is the indispensable complement of transcontinental and trans-ocean air service. Weather observation is an important phase of it.

Aviation is at once the promise and the threat of the future. In the moral sense, as well as materially, the heavier-than-air flying machine overlaps all the old frontiers of land and sea.

Gardening

Timely Hints

Seed catalogues put out by the large firms contain much more than a mere mention of the many flowers and vegetables available in Canada. They specify important points such as time of planting, resistance or lack of resistance to frost, height, color, season of blooming, whether scented, and also the suitability of the flower for cutting purposes.

All of these points should be taken into consideration in planning a real garden. Little plants must not be hidden by tall things, and there should be as much bloom in the garden as possible from early June on.

Quality Vegetables

The secret of tender vegetables, whether they be grown in the city or on the farm, lies in quick growth. A check caused by dry weather or anything else invariably causes woodiness. To eliminate such danger, experienced market gardeners push their plants along with frequent applications of carefully applied commercial fertilizer.

Garden For The Tenant

Pleasures and profits of gardening are not confined to the owner of property. Even the tenant who moves as regularly as May 1st may have a garden which will rival that of the most permanent nature. Of course he will not be inclined to spend a great deal of money on shrubs and trees but he gets much the same effect with annual flowers and vines.

There are at least a score of big bushy annuals like dahlias, cosmos, African marigolds, and castor beans which will reach a height of three to eight feet by mid-July. These will furnish ample background for the hundreds of dwarf to medium height annual flowers which are listed in any seed catalogue. To screen verandas or fence, such things as scarlet runner beans, morning glories or hops will do the job in a few weeks.

Worries Of Plastic Surgeon

This Is Good Story Whether You Believe It Or Not

Plastic surgery has advanced with leaps and bounds in recent years, but plastic surgeons are still having their troubles. One doctor, according to The Commentator, had a man's inner throat to patch and the only skin he found suitable was on the man's neck. The surgeon operated and grafted the skin of the neck to that of the throat quite successfully. But, according to the medical report, the strip from the neck grew a beard and prevented the luckless patient from swallowing his food.

Still The Best Seller

Bible Remains Source Of The Noblest Moral Ideas

The Minneapolis Journal says whatever the reader may think of the matter of divine inspiration, the Bible remains the source of the noblest moral ideals, that the world has known. The human interest of its stories, the beauty of its poetry, the wisdom of its observations are incomparable. Even in the English-speaking world its annual sales outstrip the best-seller, and its influence permeates every department of human thought and life.

Building A Bridge

Is Greater Undertaking Than It Appears On The Surface

There's a great deal more to building a bridge than the average "kibitzer", or sidewalk superintendent, can see, says Herbert B. Nichols, in the Christian Science Monitor. When construction gets under way with 50 different kinds of holes being dug from one approach to the other, when trucks and "bulldozers" start in on steamshoveled debris and when the steel begins to go up, the populace begins to take notice. But because of the particular dislike engineers have for talking about their work until after the last rivet hole is plugged and the last load of concrete poured, there are literally thousands of minor, but interesting, tasks on every project about which the public knows nothing.

That practically every steel arch bridge is prefabricated, or put together in the back yard of the bridge-builders before the pieces are taken apart, labelled and shipped for erection on the site, is one of the steps least known. Those who have bought automobile replacement parts only to get them home and find that the bolt-holes won't match up can appreciate why every section is put together at least once on dry land. The labeling explains why the builders experience so little difficulty putting together their jig-saw puzzle.

A Remarkable Record

Canadian Girl Is Brilliant Student In New York School

Margaret Smith, a 19-year-old Canadian girl who does most of her studying in subways and busses, is the only one of 1,264 women students at the New York University School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, to win grade "A" in all her subjects during the fall semester.

The results, made public by Dean John Madden, showed 395 girls received honors in individual and groups of subjects but failed to equal the Canadian student's all "A" ratings.

A native of Halifax, N.S., Miss Smith moved to New York nine years ago and graduated from high school in 1935 when she enrolled at the university. Living on the outskirts of the city she must commute an hour and a half each morning to reach her 9 a.m. classes. After her final lecture at 1 p.m. Miss Smith goes to a commercial house where she is employed as part-time stenographer and office worker. She studies on her way from home to school, from school to work, and work to home in the evening.

Useful Information

When having the misfortune to break a tumbler or other piece of glassware, use absorbent cotton to pick up the fine particles, dampening the cotton before using. This method is much more effective than a brush, especially on hard surfaces, for it gets even the smallest pieces and does away with the danger of slivers entering the fingers.

WHY SHORTNESS OF BREATH?

A person who breathes comfortably when at rest, but gets out of breath when some physical exercise is taken, naturally wants to know the reason.

In the young and middle-aged, unusual shortness of breath on exertion in the absence of lung or heart disease, is due to being "out of condition". The causes of being "out of condition" are:

1. Want of regular exercise, which makes the heart as well as other muscles flabby and unequal to extra effort.
2. Obesity, that is, being over-fat. This is always due to the taking of too much food, as well as to the invariable lack of exercise taken by obese individuals.
3. Over-indulgence in tobacco or alcohol.
4. The absorption of poisonous substances from teeth, tonsils, bowels, etc.
5. All conditions of general debility as from illness, under-nourishment or too long confinement indoors.
6. Anaemia—that is poor blood. In such cases the blood lacks colour, the heart is undernourished and the oxygen supply to the lungs is at a low level.

The most important of all causes of shortness of breath is in the case of disorder and disease of the heart and diseases of the lungs such as chronic bronchitis and tuberculosis. Disorder and disease of the heart may occur early in life but these, particularly actual heart disease, are commoner in adult life and in the aged is usually the best indication of the heart's capacity. It is often a better sign of the condition of the heart than can be gained from physical examination.

Chronic bronchitis and tuberculosis, by interfering with the normal function of the lungs, will cause shortness of breath. The blood in such conditions is unable to gain a sufficient supply of oxygen for an adequate lung supply. In the young, one should take note of breathlessness. It is often associated with heart or lung disease. The best time to treat such a condition is before the cause has progressed very far. One of the best means of warding off the consequences of the various agencies productive of breathlessness is by regular physical examination. This advice pertains to both young and old. If universally followed, it would prevent much severe illness and many premature deaths.

Scares Birds

Peculiar Calling Followed By Man In England Who Shouts For A Living

There is a man living in Fairbourne Heath, Kent, who has shouted for his living for 73 years.

He is George Brann, last of the Kentish bird scarers. Seventy-three years ago this month he was first called out to do bird scaring at the age of nine.

His job was to patrol the boundaries of a 20-acre field of corn swinging a clapper, blowing a penny whistle with a pea in it, turning a policeman's rattle, or ringing a ship's bell. He also shouted out the bird charm that had come down in his family for generations.

There was no tune to the charms, he explained. He didn't sing, he just "hollered". Such was the power of his voice that at 16 he was the most sought-after bird scarer at the sowing season south of the Thames.

He's never been to London, and wouldn't go even if he were invited by the Lord Mayor himself, he said.

CHAPTER VIII.

Soon they were taxiing over the meadow, and Sarah Lynn saw with a warm uprush of gratitude that it had been levelled into the semblance of a decent landing-field. Great-granny, Uncle Lynn, going to that extra expense so that she might see her Ladybug first in the setting of old memories.

The plane turned, disclaimed the browning grass, rose serenely into the air. Instantly, Sarah Lynn knew in a blaze of ecstasy that she had never flown before! Turning traitor to all earlier thrills, she realized that a cabin-plane cut in two the kingdom and the power and the glory. Now, with nothing between her and the sky, she was really flying!

"My first flight in my own plane!" she told herself rapturously. "I can never be as happy as this again if I live to be a hundred!"

She wished passionately that there were more hours instead of minutes before her, but the Gipsy Moth devoured the miles relentlessly, and came daintily down at the San Jose airport.

Men came running with grinning, friendly faces to help her out, mechanics, helpers, attendants. There was a youth with a camera which clicked as Sarah Lynn stepped to the ground.

"Well, Miss Dana, how do you like your boat? Sick job, huh? Going to fly her yourself?" He came closer. "Mind if I get one of you and Gunnar Thorwald together?" the reporter persisted. "Shaking hands, huh? Sort of 'Welcome to the sky!'"

"Gunnar Thorwald isn't here," she began coldly, but then she saw him coming toward her. "Oh, please, we'd rather not!" She kept her head down.

The Norwegian ace reached them.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER

Mrs. Roy

If you suffer from nervousness, weakness, backache, headaches, periods, you will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription beneficial. It relieves the discomforts of the menstrual period, calms the nerves, improves nutrition, stimulates the appetite, and so strengthens you. Mrs. William Roy, of Fernside Ave., St. Catherine, Ont., said: "I was dreadfully weak and suffered from headaches and other caused by functional disturbances. My nerves seemed so unstrung and I would become irritated and upset easily. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gave me splendid relief from my weakness and I felt much better in every way." Roy is from your druggist's list.

"I drive you home," he said without preliminary greeting.

The young newspaper man managed a snapshot while they got into Jordan's car. Thanks a lot!" he called out, his nose looking pertly triumphant.

They rolled out of the field and down the road.

"Oh, I forgot!" Sarah Lynn said. "Great-granny and Uncle Lynn were coming for me! I'm afraid I must wait for them."

"We meet them on the road?"

"Yes, we could."

"You must go quickly home?"

"Oh, no," she discarded the happy birthday plans at which her mother had archly hinted. "You mean?"

"I have the earnest wish to see those large trees."

A muscle twitched in her cheek. "Then we'll go to Felton, over the mountains, an hour, an hour and a half."

"No matter. I am free."

And she was free! Her own plane, her own life!

"So now," he was saying gravely, "you will fly."

"Now I will fly."

"That is good."

They met the car from Danavale and Sarah Lynn jumped out and ran to explain. "Oh, you've brought Lightning!"

"We had to," Lynn Dana told her. "She was having refined hysterics. Better take her along. I'll telephone your mother." They waited, watching contentedly, until the fliers were out of sight.

Lightning crouched at Sarah Lynn's feet, making small sounds.

"Mountains I like; large trees I like," Gunnar said, coming out of one silence and going into another.

She nodded without speaking, and the companionable stillness held, mile on mounting mile.

Redwoods were outlined against the hearty blue sky.

"So, now you fly," Gunnar said again, seriously. "So, now, also, we are friends?"

They were now friends, she told him with a gravity matching his own, and comfortable cloaks of silence enveloped them again.

"You mean—?"

But a sound of pure astonishment escaped him at sight of the first forest giant.

"But I have never believed it could be so!"

"Wait!" she pledged him happily. "That is only the prelude to the great ones."

He settled back in his seat with a long, relaxing sigh of contentment. "Large trees I like," he said, "and mountains and the sea, and songs and books; most I like the sky. Also I like a friend."

Sarah Lynn leaned over Lightning and gave her a hug. "You have one good American friend already. My Uncle Lynn says Conrad Jordan is the best possible person in this country for you to know. He says he's everything—a fine flier, a scholar, a sportsman."

"Also, he makes good music."

"Oh? I didn't know that."

"But yes. At his lodge on the Lake of Tahoe, many nights I have sat by the fire, wind and rain sounding, to listen to his deep thoughts from the piano." He gave generous gangway to a truck. "You shall hear. I will bring you there one day."

She did not answer, unless, indeed, he heard the thumping beat of her heart. She thought he must. It was a relief to reach the park and get out of the car, and to watch his face as they went walking into the presence of the Big Trees.

The effect upon him was satisfying. He would never be ecstatic or explosive, she knew, but all the appreciation and emotion which others expelled went into the quality of his looking, his silence. He stepped softly, as if he found himself in a cathedral, and his face, under the thatch of unsalted-butter-colored hair, might have been the earnest countenance of a Boy Scout bent upon good deeds.

Gunnar was looking only at the trees, so Sarah Lynn was able to look at him. He seemed younger, somehow; his austerity was giving way to a little-boy-like wonder, with an interlining of wistfulness.

"So, now, you fly," he began as before. "So, now, we are friends."

"Yes," she told him contentedly.

"Friends," he repeated, but there was clearly more on his mind.

"Fliers," he stated with authority.

"I shall not marry."

"No?"

"No."

"No," she agreed docilely.

Then they walked on, and he was quite evidently relieved at having settled an important matter swiftly and finally. She would be a flier, and they would be friends, and fliers did not marry.

Newspaper publicity broke out like a rash.

Miss Ethelinda Pennington proved to be putty in the hands of bright young reporters and bland feature-writers from San Jose and San Francisco papers. Quickly and painlessly they extracted a vivid picture of Sarah Lynn's odd childhood with many quaint details as to the mornings in the meadow and her preoccupation with ladybugs, and departed jubilantly for their typewriters before she was well out of the ether.

Ladybug was a rich theme and they rang endless changes upon it.

Many pages went from the wheel-ed-chair to Sally Ann in Cornwall.

"There was an epic battle between Cousin Adelaide, big and beautiful and lyrically maternal, and the little old Matriarch, small and mighty and mad. 'I'm sorry for you, Addie,' she said, 'but you better make up your mind to it. You're worse off than the hen that hatched ducks; you got an eagle, and I guess maybe it's harder to watch 'em fly than swim!'"

"We bought her that flying-machine, Lynn and me, and we're paying a young feller to teach her to run it. Didn't I tell you, first time ever I laid eyes on the young-one? I knew right off she was one of the dark ones!"

"Then she went close and peered up at her and shook a parchment finger in her face. 'And you listen to me, Addie, for it's the gospel truth. She's more my child than she is yours, for all you borned her and there's worse than seventy years between us!'"

Sarah Lynn was sincerely sorry for her mother's martyrdom, but life contained for her now only two shining and splendid facts flying and Gunnar Thorwald; when other subjects came into her mind it was like pouring fluids into an already brimming bowl; they simply ran over and off.

Whenever she flew with Gunnar Thorwald, Sarah Lynn sat in silence watching his sure hands, looking, learning, remembering, and stored up questions for the earth.

"I have the wish to see your Golden Gate in sunset," he said one day.

They were driving to the landing-field. "Gunnar, I want to come down in a parachute," Sarah Lynn said.

"Yes. But not yet. There is for you much more learning."

"Of course. After I can really fly. It must be the most satisfying thing in the world and not so terribly hard. Just wait and count ten before you pull the string."

"That is, you think, so simple?"

She shivered happily. "It must be the most gloriously terrifying thing—just bailing out into the blue beyond with a silly trick parasol over you! But I want to do it, Gunnar."

He nodded. "You shall do it. That I promise. From my plane. But—when I say you are ready."

"Yes," she settled back in her seat, entirely content.

Virtually A Prisoner

Richest Man In World Cannot Leave His Own Land

Picturesque, a character who might have stepped out of the Old Testament, the Nizam of Hyderabad conducts one of the strangest reigns of modern time: rule of the richest man in the world.

From the sultry, showy place in the city of Hyderabad, capital of this south central Indian province, the nizam wields his power over some 14,000,000 subjects. In a huge red and gold room he directs the routine business of his native state, reaching decisions quickly. He attends his official duties with utter lack of ceremony. He wears the simplest attire. On state occasions, however, he stages vast Oriental splendor.

Fabulously wealthy, the nizam is said to be worth $600,000,000. Yet he is virtually a prisoner in his own land. Ancient customs decree that he shall never leave Indian shores. Actually he never leaves the capital city, even during the torrid summers.

He owns six beautiful palaces, yet he prefers to dwell in the smallest. He has a fleet of 50 limousines, yet he often travels about in an old touring car of 1927 model. He collects the bulk of his fortune from his people, but he turns much of it back in works of public welfare, model villages, sanitariums and child health centres. As a native state, Hyderabad has its own stamp.

MAKE LETTERS SPARKLE;
WRITE AS YOU'D TALK

Be Admired For Good Writing

What a lift Bill gets from reading one of Margie's letters! It's like hearing her voice.

How to cultivate that knack of warm, friendly correspondence? Get the person you're writing to into your letter. Scratch out "I'd have written sooner but I've been so busy. I've been swimming every day. The tennis courts are fine."

Say instead, "Such fun, Bill. I've hardly been able to catch my breath. How I wish you could join me for an early morning dip in the lake. And help me give some of the tennis stars around here a good trouncing."

Dust off your vocabulary. Don't be afraid to talk about "dancing waves," "glow and crackle of bonfires on the beach," "luscious fragrance of fresh-cut clover."

Pay attention to the little things that make a letter pleasing: crisp, clean note paper, wide margins, correct spelling.

Good letter-writing is easy to learn with our practical 32-page booklet as guide. Gives salutations, closings. Sample letters for all occasions—social and business.

Send 15c in coin for your copy of "Good Letter Writing Made Easy" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg.

The following booklets are also available at 15c in coins each:

- 165—"How to Weave Useful Novelties"
- 161—"New Ideas in Making Curtains and Draperies"
- 141—"Self Instruction in Skiing and Other Winter Sports"
- 127—"The New Way To a Youthful Figure"
- 105—"How To Make Rock Gardens and Lily Pools"

Tourist Trade

Increased Travel From Old Country To Canada Is Expected

"It is quite safe to predict that travel from the British Isles to Canada during 1939 will increase by fully 100 per cent. over that of last year," said P. A. Clews, of London, England, European manager for the Canadian National Railways, in Montreal on one of his periodical visits to headquarters to discuss business matters.

On the subject of travel Mr. Clews continued: "It is indeed probable that the tourist traffic this year will reach record proportions. While some of this travel will enable visitors to see the important cities of Quebec, Montreal and Toronto and obtain a glimpse of Niagara Falls before returning to the seaboard, quite an impressive number of British travellers will extend their visit to include a journey to the Pacific coast and many have been booked for Jasper National Park."

One of the important newspaper groups which in past years had operated similar tours, is again active this season and through this organization a considerable number of travellers will come to Canada. The advantage of this in developing excellent publicity for Canada was noted by Mr. Clews in pointing out that 22 newspapers are now engaged in stressing the features of travel in the Dominion for the benefit of intending patrons.

From Waste Gas

Discovery That Glycerine Can Be Made From By-Product

Discovery that glycerine, one of the chemicals in world-wide use, can be made from a gasoline by-product waste gas was announced at Baltimore.

From ancient days the only source of glycerine has been animal and vegetable fats. The new glycerine is neither animal nor vegetable in source.

Its synthesis, described to the American Chemical Society, was regarded as one of the leading industrial scientific achievements of this century. Production already has been proven on a commercial scale.

Chemists of the Shell Development Company, Emeryville, Cal., who invented the process, said the oil wells can supply glycerine for the entire world. The new glycerine they declared is even better in non-toxic qualities than the United States Pharmacopoeia requires of the "natural" glycerine.

The glycerine is made from propylene, a waste gas from the cracking process of gasoline manufacture. The gas is treated with chlorine. The result is allyl chloride, a new commercial product, useful for industry, but poisonous.

Further treatment of the allyl chloride results in glycerine.

Sun Spots And Polar Lights

Polar lights are to be seen in some half dozen forms, the most common one being the arch. Scientists have connected the polar aurora with sun spot activity and beautiful displays may be expected when the sun spot cycle is at its maximum.
